

TRACELESS TABLETS

By LUCY K. WYNCOOP

A newspaper item stated that at a meeting of the G—Medical society Dr. Blanchard, who had just returned from a trip to India announced that during his stay there he had made a study of poisons. A certain rajah whom he had visited possessed the secret of a certain poison that left no trace, though it was very deadly. The rajah had given him the name of the poison, but the doctor declined to make it known.

Blanchard became the recipient through the mail of stray requests for the name of the poison. Some professed to be scientific men, some physicians, while some desired to get rid of vermin and insects. The doctor, who attributed these requests to a desire to get rid of some enemy, was astonished at the number of would be murderers.

The idea occurred to him to give out the prescription with a view to discovering how many persons would use it and for what purpose. He consulted with the chief of police, who was friendly to the idea, then inserted a small advertisement as follows:

Dr. Blanchard's traceless tablets. This is a drug the name of which was given Dr. Blanchard by a rajah of India. It is beneficial in exterminating vermin, leaving no disagreeable results—no trace whatever. Address Box 146, P. O.

The number of persons who desired the traceless tablets for exterminating purposes was remarkable. The doctor could have made a fortune in a very short time by supplying the demand. He simply read the letters, then put them in a pigeon hole in his desk to be submitted to the chief of police. How many of them occasioned police investigation the doctor never knew.

There was one that interested the doctor especially and which he kept to himself. It was, or at least purported to be, from a young girl who was afflicted with a long and painful illness, who desired to die. But she shrank from giving her parents the shock that would attend her suicide. She had read of Dr. Blanchard's announcement to the medical society and inferred that the traceless tablets were the poison there referred to. She might use them and her dear father and mother would suppose she had died a natural death.

Among the number of applications for his tablets this was the only one the doctor credited with the truth. There was something so pathetic and frank in it that he at once set down the reason given as genuine. At any rate, he determined to call upon the writer for a personal interview.

He found Miss Ethel Ames a young lady of twenty. There was in her pale face a very spiritual expression. Her eyes were really windows to a pure soul, and it was plain that if blessed with health she would have been comely. The doctor, not caring at once to appear in his true light, told her that he had come to see her about one of his tablets, but owing to the great risk incurred in such a trade his price was $100. He hoped that by putting the price so high to put her off, at least till he could diagnose her case. But he failed. She asked him to hand her a check book in a drawer near him that she might close the trade.

Blanchard, unwilling to risk disabusing her mind as to his intentions, took the check, put it in his portmanteau and, taking a tablet made of sugar and flour from his pocket, laid it on a table beside him. Then he asked the girl to give him her symptoms. This she did, and after a great many questions and answers he made up his mind that hers was one of those cases where mind dominates matter to the disadvantage of the latter. In other words, she was unconsciously producing upon herself an imaginary disease.

There is no physical ailment that is so rarely treated successfully by physicians and so often put to flight by the various methods that are dependent upon faith alone as this. Dr. Blanchard saw an opportunity for an experiment. When he had gained all the knowledge of the girl's condition he desired he said:

"The rajah from whom I received the name of this drug told me that one of his household who was ill and whose symptoms as he described them to me were exactly the same as yours was so much trouble without being of any use, even to herself, that he directed she be poisoned. She was given a tablet such as I furnish you and went to sleep. She awoke, to the surprise of every one, and was completely cured of her disease. All other persons who had taken it slept the sleep of death. I would advise you to take the tablet tonight, and you will either wake up in heaven or a healthy woman. I prophesy the latter to be a certainty."

"Why are you so sure of that, doctor?" asked the patient eagerly.

"Because my friend the rajah had it tried on 164 cases similar to yours, and every one was cured."

The doctor left his patient with the understanding that if she took the tablet she would be well, but to guard it from others, for they would surely die under its influence. He told her that he would call on the morrow and as surely expected to find her alive and well as that the sun would rise and set.

TONE UP THE STOMACH

How Most Cases of Indigestion May Be Cured.

In the human body, when the blood becomes thin and impure, the different organs fail to do their work properly. One of the first to fail is the stomach and right here most sufferers from impure blood make a serious mistake. They imagine because their digestion is poor, that something is wrong with the stomach itself. A reduction in the amount of nourishment taken often makes matters worse.

The truth in such cases is that the stomach is failing to do its work well because it is not receiving a sufficient supply of pure, red blood.

Such a sufferer should take a thorough treatment for the blood with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. These pills actually make new, red blood and give strength and tone to the entire system.

Mr. Albert J. Snell, whose address is R. F. D. No. 69, Bemus Point, Chautauque Co., N. Y., says:

"My stomach became out of order because of irregular meal hours and rapid eating. My appetite was so poor that I did not care for food and there was constantly a gnawing pain in my stomach. I got but little nourishment and soon was completely run down. I couldn't sleep or rest well, although I craved it and my eyes ached. My complexion and the whites of my eyes had a yellow, jaundice-like color. I grew so weak and shaky that I could hardly put one foot ahead of the other and my back was weak and sore."

"I suffered for five years and for a long time I had a doctor but finally gave him up as I saw he wasn't helping me. I then tried several medicines without benefit, until I took Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. A few boxes showed me that they were adapted to my trouble and they cured me. I work hard every day and have never been troubled with my stomach since."

HURRIES TO SAVE LIFE, DROPS DEAD IN HOSPITAL

Dr. Hecht Fatally Stricken on Reaching Operating Room to Administer Anesthetic to Engineer.

Somerville, N. J., Feb. 13.—Dr. John P. Hecht, one of the best known physicians in central New Jersey, dropped dead in the operating room of the Somerville hospital after racing there to save the life of a railroad engineer, Andrew Grovin, whose skull had been fractured.

Hecht reached the operating room panting from his hurry and was about to administer an anesthetic when heart disease killed him.

He was 54 years old and supposedly in the best of health. Grovin was still alive last night, but in a critical condition.

TO FENCE OFF LEPER EARLY.

Action to Be Taken by Authorities of the State of Washington.

Tacoma, Wash., Feb. 13.—Having been shunted off from place to place, as the result of the long government investigation to determine whether he is a leper, John R. Early, formerly of Washington, D. C., has been found at Summit, near here and will be fenced in on an acre of land. The Pierce county commissioners decided to take this step after an investigation by the county physician. The land is property which Early, before it was known that he was the man over whom the controversy about leprosy took place, agreed to buy on instalments. His wife and three small children are with him.

BACKACHE NOT A DISEASE

But a Symptom, a Danger Signal Which Every Woman Should Heed.

Backache is a symptom of organic weakness or derangement. If you have backache don't neglect it. To get permanent relief you must reach the root of the trouble. Read about Mrs. Woodall's experience.

Morton's Gap, Kentucky.—"I suffered two years with female disorders, my health was very bad and I had a continual backache which was simply awful. I could not stand on my feet long enough to cook a meal's victuals without my back nearly killing me, and I would have such dragging sensations I could hardly bear it. I had soreness in each side, could not stand tight clothing, and was irregular. I was completely run down. On advice I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and am enjoying good health. It is now more than two years and I have not had an ache or pain since. I do all my own work, washing and everything, and never have backache any more. I think your medicine is grand and I praise it to all my neighbors. If you think my testimony will help others you may publish it."—Mrs. OLLIE WOODALL, Morton's Gap, Kentucky.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

BRINGS MAN BACK TO LIFE

Pulmotor Restores Vitality in a Victim of Gas

WAS GIVEN UP AS DEAD

Pump Oxygen Into Lungs—This Simple German Device Is Likely to Prove Great Saver of Life.

Chicago, Feb. 13.—Again Sunday doctors performed the marvellous operation of reviving the apparently dead to life. This time the apparatus used was the pulmotor.

David Haas was asphyxiated by illuminating gas in his room. For more than three hours friends worked over him. They failed to restore respiration and Haas was given up as dead.

Dr. J. Lewis was called in and sent for a pulmotor. In another three hours Haas was able to sit up and express his wonder and his thanks. He was completely restored not only to life, but to health. He felt no ill effects at all, he said.

Dr. Lewis said: "Speaking medically, Haas was in a state of death when the machine arrived. He was certainly beyond all other aid."

Those who witnessed the amazing operation were utterly awed as they saw the spirit of life forced to return.

That this simple apparatus has given man a new control over life and death the doctors are certain. Haas is the fifth who has been "called back." Fifteen others who would have died have been saved.

The pulmotor is a German device. The one used here is owned by the Commonwealth Edison company. It consists simply of a tank holding oxygen under pressure of 3,000 pounds to the square inch, with a pump and a valve for reducing the pressure to two pounds to the square inch. The oxygen is pumped into the lungs direct through an apparatus invented by Dr. Harry M. Richter of the Northwestern university medical school.

When no pulmotor can be obtained an ordinary electric vacuum cleaner can be used. But this pumps only air into the lungs instead of oxygen.

MAN AND BABY DIE IN POISON CANDY PLOT

Sweets Are Placed at Door of Minneapolis Home; Third Victim Dying.

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 13.—Victims of a poisoned candy plot—3-year-old Bonnie Reedy and Simon O'Malley, 50 years old, a hackman—are dead from eating arsenic in sweets placed at the door of the O'Malley home, in this city, Sunday night. Louis Spencer, who also ate of the candy, is dying, while Clara Grates, who also tasted the sweets, is unharmed.

The death of the little child and the man occurred while the mother of the baby was downtown buying the child a pair of shoes. On the memory of a girl clerk in a drug store, which is believed to be the only place in Minneapolis where sold candy of the brand that was used in the murder, depends the chance of the police to capture the poisoner. To-day she will look at persons whom the police will show her in an effort to identify the purchaser of the candy.

Many theories are advanced by the police for a motive, but none of them has led the detectives any nearer to a solution of the mystery.

PROSECUTED 14,702 PERSONS.

Wickersham Tells What the Department of Justice Did Last Year.

New York, Feb. 13.—Two thousand persons from various sections of Westchester county and Manhattan listened to an address which George W. Wickersham, attorney-general of the United States, delivered Sunday afternoon under the auspices of the New Rochelle People's forum, during which he praised the Taft administration and told of the prosecutions of illegal combinations. His subject was "The Administration of Federal Justice." Mr. Wickersham declared that during the year 1911 his department had completed 14,702 criminal prosecutions.

"So long as men believe," said Mr. Wickersham, "either that they can violate the law without detection or that they can escape the penalty of such violation, they will only obey the law so far as it seems to be to their advantage; and where the penalty for violation of the law is by fine merely, they will obey it only if the fine is larger than the profit to be realized by violating it, and where there is a reasonable certainty that they will be compelled to pay the fine."

After reviewing in detail the various kinds of prosecutions for violations of the federal laws with which his department had been concerned, Mr. Wickersham said: "Without reflecting upon any other, I may say that, under the present administration, the effort of the department of justice has been carefully and impartially to investigate all complaints of violation of the federal statutes, which have been brought to its attention. A small force of competent investigators, selected entirely of merit and without regard to political influence, has been engaged in the work of investigation and detection of crime. This force numbers about one hundred men—nearly half of whom are lawyers, some twenty expert accountants, and the remainder keen, alert, intelligent observers. To the thoroughness of investigation which is carried on by these men before a prosecution is instituted, is greatly due the large proportion of convictions resulting from prosecution."

"Thus, of the 14,702 criminal prosecutions terminated during the fiscal year 1911, 9,385 resulted in conviction, 4,399 in pleas of guilty, and 2,915 were dismissed by the government for one reason or another."

MAINE SHOE MAN FLEES AS DEFAULTER

Freeport Astounded at the Disappearance of Head of Town's Leading Industry.

Portland, Me., Feb. 13.—A. W. Shaw, founder, president and general manager of the A. W. Shaw corporation of Freeport, shoe manufacturers, has absconded and is a self-confessed defaulter of a large sum from his company, according to an announcement made by receivers who were appointed yesterday. In a letter sent from Boston to J. Amick of Freeport, his partner for 22 years and the heaviest stockholder, he wrote that he intended to commit suicide in mid-March.

Playing the stock market for years with varying success, cleaning up $300,000 only a few months ago, he wrote, then losing all because, like others, he wanted ten millions, was assigned as the cause of his downfall.

The alleged defalcation was described by Mr. Amick in a circular to creditors as a heavy one, but no estimate was made of the amount. Canceled checks received from banks proved, according to the statement, that Shaw had misappropriated large sums of money, which so depleted the corporation's balances that it was impossible to meet maturing obligations.

To protect the creditors, Mr. Amick applied to the court yesterday for the appointment of receivers, and he and Edward W. Wheeler of Brunswick were appointed.

BANK BOARDS MUST MEET EXAMINERS

Comptroller Orders More Attention to Business on the Part of the Directors.

Washington, Feb. 13.—Comptroller of the Currency Murray yesterday ordered that boards of directors of national banks hereafter shall meet the federal bank examiners at every examination to discuss the affairs of the institutions, especially their loans and discounts. In the large cities where the assembly of the directors may cause considerable inconvenience the examiners have been authorized to use their discretion in enforcing the new order unless some condition is found in the bank deserving criticism.

Carrying out the spirit of this regulation, the comptroller yesterday advised about 500 banks, located in various parts of the country, that their course in recently electing a majority of the board directors who are not residents of the places where the banks are located was "objectionable."

"The directors," he said, "are not conveniently available for monthly board meetings; they cannot meet to pass on all paper purchased or discounted; they cannot be readily convened should urgent necessity arise and they cannot meet the national bank examiner when the bank is examined."

WILSON LIKES POLITICS

Realizes That He Must Expect Brickbats

BELIEVES CHANCES GOOD

For Success of Democrats—Says Republicans Fail to Rectify Wrongs—In Chicago He Sets Forth Some of His Policies.

Chicago, Feb. 13.—Governor Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey fired the opening gun in his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination in Illinois in an address delivered yesterday before the Liqueur club by reiterating his belief in the initiative and referendum and predicting Democratic victory at the polls in November. He arrived in Chicago from Kentucky early in the day and during the morning met hundreds of Chicago business men and Democratic leaders from different parts of Illinois. Six hundred citizens attended the Lincoln birthday luncheon at which Governor Wilson was the guest of honor.

"I believe in the initiative and referendum because they will give the people real representative government," said Governor Wilson. "They are state and local questions and are designed to give the people the power in localities where special interests have obtained control of public affairs. I have never heard them suggested as a substitute for representative government. In fact, they will safeguard the people in preserving representative government wherever and whenever it is necessary. I have never favored the recall of judges, because they are not administrative officers of the government. They simply interpret and enforce the law. To urge the recall of judges is to treat a symptom, rather than the disease. My idea is to abolish the laws that make it possible for special interests to control the judiciary. Sound business need have no fear of progressive government. It is only the business that thrives on special privileges that is in danger."

"I have visited a number of states and I think the Democratic party's prospects for success are excellent, no matter who is nominated by the Republicans. The country, I believe, is deeply dissatisfied with Republican management of the nation's affairs. The people desire a change. The Republicans have failed to rectify the essential wrongs. I think the people are more interested in principles than in persons in this year's presidential campaign. My friends often ask me how I like practical politics and I tell them that I like it first rate. The experience is not new to me. Anybody who fights for reform is certain to have bricks thrown at him. In politics the brickbats are often invisible and cannot be dodged."

FUNDS SHORT, KEMP AND MRS. SINCLAIR PART

Woman Who Left Author to Live With Pet Returns to Parents. "All Off," Says Friend.

New York, Feb. 13.—Another bubble of "true love" has burst; another romance has died, and Cupid has taken the count at the hands and hearts of Mrs. Meta Sinclair, former wife of Upton, the novelist, and Harry Kemp, the Kansas poet.

Just where the poet is nobody knows. Mrs. Sinclair has returned to the home of her father, William F. Fuller, clerk of the court of general sessions in this city. Upton Sinclair sailed for Germany Saturday, with his 10-year-old son. Mrs. Sinclair and Kemp, after the separation of the Sinclairs, took up a Utopian abode in a bungalow near West Point, Pleasant, N. J., but their funds ran out, and several days ago they came to a parting of the ways.

"Yes," said a friend of Mrs. Sinclair, "it's all off between Meta and Harry. From what I hear it was a case of eat with papa and mamma or starve with Harry. Mrs. Sinclair's parents agreed to take her into their home, but refused to have the poet around."

Mrs. Sinclair left her husband in the latter part of August of last year. She returned to her parents' home in New York and was shortly followed to that city by the poet. Sinclair sued for divorce, naming Kemp.

Sinclair's petition was twice heard, the second finding of a master being favorable to him.

Following the entering of the suit against her, Mrs. Sinclair issued the following statement:

"I am an individual living in the world and I have a right to my own life. I am going to get rid of my impediment and become a free person. But I shall do it in a way that will point out some thing in my sex. I hope in my course of action to be of benefit to them. I want to find the way to freedom, but I also want to point out the path to my sisters."

"I shall be a martyr, but I shall point out the way. I shall not contest—at least so far as I now know—my husband's suit."

"In attempting to assert my freedom, I have pursued several friendships with other men as if I were not married."

$250,000 FIRE IN NEW YORK.

Business Buildings on Vesey Street Are Burned Out.

New York, Feb. 13.—Fire which was barely controlled at 1:45 o'clock yesterday morning, swept along a row of brick structures occupied by various business firms on Vesey street, causing a loss roughly estimated at that hour at $250,000. The building at 34 Vesey street, where the fire originated was gutted, the building immediately adjoining, to the east, was partially burned; three floors of the building adjoining, on the other side, were eaten out by the flames, and the top floor of the building at No. 38 was damaged. One fireman was caught by a back draft and badly burned about the face.

If, after a cake has been baked, it persists in sticking to the bottom of the pan, turn the pan upside down and press close to it a very wet cloth. This will bring the cake out quickly.

To wash men's overalls, rub them well with cold water and naphtha soap (the yellow kind) and roll up tight and leave rolled up overnight. In the morning wash them in hot water and see how clean they are without rubbing at all.

To clean real lace, place the lace between folds of tissue paper, well sprinkled with calcined magnesite, and put it between the leaves of a book under a weight for two or three days. Shake out the powder and the lace will be found quite clean.

Dissolve five cents' worth of gum arabic in eight ounces of water. Bottle up. When wanted for use, add one tablespoonful to a pan of starch while hot. The clothes will remain stiff in damp weather, says the Washington Herald. This is especially nice for shirt waists and colored clothes, but will do equally well for white clothes.

Servicable dressing table covers are being made of hand woven Russian crash, which is pale gray in color, worked in old-fashioned cross-stitch patterns introducing pastel tints, says the New York Herald. The ends of the linen strip are turned and buttoned with a large stitch, and above this there is a quaint design with Noah's ark, houses, trees, men, women and animals. The initials of the owner or recipient, if the runner is to be made for a gift, are usually placed in the middle, close to the front edge. Old English letters match the border design better than any others, and they are particularly decorative when copied in cross stitch.

Fruits Make Aromatic Fires.

The fascination of a bed of glowing coals is familiar to a host of people. An additional charm has now become popular among open fire devotees. The broad expanse of blazing embers must also delight the senses by being aromatic.

A practical and economical housewife, says the Chicago Inter-Ocean, started the idea by declaring it "a waste and a shame" to throw away the orange and lemon peels that rapidly accumulated because of a large family of children demanding quantities of fruit for the daily bill of fare. After utilizing the fresh peels in a variety of flavorings, it finally became necessary to try the peels as fuel.

One of the dried peels was accidentally thrown on the open fire one evening and the delicate spicy odor that delighted the nostrils of the young people proved a revelation in its possibilities.

A small ornamental cupboard was straightway built in an alcove at one side of the grate, where the contents stored therein would keep dry and free from mold, and the young people began to vie with one another in collecting aromatic materials for giving the final touch of fascination when gathered about the glowing coals at night. Not only the dried lemon and orange peels, but the shavings from pineapples and apple parings were all dried and stored in this quaint perfume closet.

Finally the youngsters began to enlarge their investigations among fragrant, spicy odors. A bag of pine needles gathered on Saturday afternoon outings, was added to the treasure closet. Botanical investigations naturally followed, to ascertain the various trees whose leaves and branches produce peculiar and fragrant odors when burned in small particles on glowing coals. The shells of nuts were saved to produce a bright blaze and cheerful crackles, and the delightful aroma from a single open grate frequently permeates the entire house with a hint of fruits and pine forests and summer outings.
